

ABSTRACT

A system, method and program for executing securely e-financial transactions over the Internet between merchants, clients and financial institutions using an electronic programmable device such as an electric vault, microcomputer or a smart card. The systems offers various secure options from which to make e-commerce financial transactions without entering credit card or personal financial information.